The Rockefeller Foundation Bellagio Center's Residencies for Scholars and Creative Artists

Descripción:

The Rockefeller Foundation's Bellagio Center provides a platform for developing new ideas and solutions to some of the most pressing global issues. The Institute for International Education's Latin America Office is encouraging innovative Scholars, Creative Artists, and Practitioners from across Latin America to apply to participate.

Residencies provide a quiet setting for focused work and a place to connect with dynamic innovators from across the globe, uninterrupted by the usual professional and personal demands. Residency participants in the past have included prominent scholars, scientists, artists, journalists, writers, non-governmental organization practitioners, and policymakers from around the world. The Rockefeller Foundation welcomes projects in all fields but is particularly interested in innovative projects that address one or more of their issue areas:

- Basic survival safeguards (such as issues of food, shelter and water)
- Global health
- Climate and environment
- Urbanization
- Social and economic security

Collegial interaction with the other residents is an integral dimension of the Bellagio experience. Meals and informal presentations of residents' work afford an opportunity for dynamic discussion and engagement with each other. During special dinners, residents have the opportunity to interact with participants in international conferences hosted in various buildings on the Center's property.

The Center also offers collaborative residencies for two to four persons working on the same project. Creative artists in all fields and scholars in all disciplines from any country are welcome to apply. A residency is typically four weeks in length.
